

BWI ASSOCIATE HEALTH CARE GROUP

FOR ALL YOUR CLINICAL WASTE MANAGEMENT ISSUES

REGISTRATION NOW AVAILABLE

The Biohazard Waste Industry Australia and New Zealand (BWI) (A Division of WMAA) has now been expanded to include all generators of clinical and related waste:

- Hospitals
- Home Healthcare providers
- Doctors
- Dentists
- Veterinarians
- and any other individual or organisation who generates clinical and related waste

Help meet accreditation requirements, know what is needed to ensure you comply with environmental and OH&S legislation and more by becoming a registered participant in BWI Associate Health Care Group for Clinical Waste Generators.

For more information, please visit the Associate Health Care Group website.

"In general terms the BWI Code of Practice provides structured, comprehensive standards that will assist all stakeholders involved in the management of clinical and related wastes.

In addition, the Code of Practice compliments existing risk management principles and provides a ready resource to assist stakeholders to achieve safe and cost effective best practice strategies."

— The Australian Council on Healthcare Standards

Registration as a Clinical Waste Generator provides you with an opportunity to be kept informed of best practice management for clinical and related wastes.

Benefits of membership in the Associate Health Care Group:

- Help line – fast efficient phone and web based assistance on any clinical waste issues – ask questions on issues and receive a response within 24 hours!
- Two for one offer to organisation members at the BWI National Conference
- Password to the BWI website. This website will allow members to access latest information on clinical and related waste management
- A copy of the most recent edition of the BWI Code of Practice for the Management of Clinical and Related Waste
- A copy of the Waste Management Education Resource Kit. A resource providing guidance and PowerPoint presentations for you to develop a waste management education program for your staff and other stakeholders
- Updates on issues related to management of clinical and related waste. This can be of particular relevance during critical phases such as undergoing accreditation.
- Resources such as suggested signage for waste management
